As to the lettered questions set forth in covering despatch, answers to a, b, c, d and the first half of e may be found in the above comments. Regarding the second half of e, the Department continues to believe that introducing the "accused of crime" concept into Article III, paragraph 2, would not serve a useful purpose, and is therefore not yet prepared to agree to the Japanese proposal. Mission's recommendation is invited.

Mr. Waring's opening remarks at the first meeting appear to the Department to have been felicitous. The Department approves, too, the procedure being followed in the negotiation and the evident care with which the records of the negotiation are being kept. The Department hopes the negotiations will continue to move steadily and smoothly to the end of a relatively early consummation.

(Addendum, in RE Article II, paragraph 1 (a). For information concerning "sec. 3 (6)" visas, including the liberal interpretation given to the word "trade" in issuing the same, see Chapter XXII, Supp. A, notes 40-43, Foreign Service Regulations).
